High School Educator Resources for Lightbox

Check out the extension activities and teacher notes!

Every Lightbox™ title for high school students comes with a Teacher Resources book to provide instructional support. It can help:

- Introduce complex topics in a way that connects with how students learn
- Save teachers time by curating primary source documents and relating them to the text
- Support the full text by linking key concepts to understanding literature
- Guide students to build a deeper understanding of the context of key novels

Lightbox high school titles enjoy all the standard functions of elementary titles, plus three more important features!

standard features listed on page 1*

Art of Storytelling

Story is a way of interacting, engaging with others, touch, or communicating across time and space. A narrative, or story, is a series of events that is often arranged. When writing his or her story, the writer structures the particular way. The writer can also use different types of literary devices to create a unique style and convey the message's overall message. All her story effectively Harper Lee structured her narrative, and used a number of literary devices in To Kill a Mockingbird.

Structure of a Narrative

Stories have a structure, which writers learn to build when creating their own stories. Narrative structure follows a pattern known as Freytag's Pyramid, consisting of five main components, which are all used throughout.

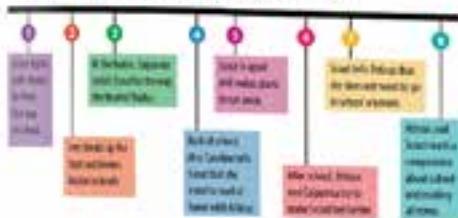

Freytag's Pyramid

Plot

Every narrative needs to have a plot. Plot is the series of actions that propel the story forward. The plot is the order in which events, or plot points, take place. These events build on each other and are organized in a logical manner. Each event causes the next event to happen, thus creating the narrative.

Plot Points in Chapter 3 of To Kill a Mockingbird

Literary Devices

A literary device is any particular feature of a work of literature that can be identified, studied, and analyzed. There are two types of literary devices: literary elements and literary techniques.

Literary Elements	Action The events that happen in a story.	Mood The overall feeling that the author wants to create in the reader.
Literary Techniques	Personification Giving human qualities to non-human objects.	Allusion A reference to a person, place, or thing that is not directly mentioned in the text.
	Satire A style of writing that uses humor to criticize people or institutions.	Moral The lesson that is learned from the story.

TEACHER NOTES

Video

1. Rememberance of Harper Lee
How does Lee's memory of her father influence her writing?

1. What do you consider to be Harper Lee's legacy? Why will her work matter to the future?
2. Harper Lee famously lived a quiet, private life, and gave her last interview in 1964. If you could ask her one question about her life and work, what would it be? What would you think she would say?

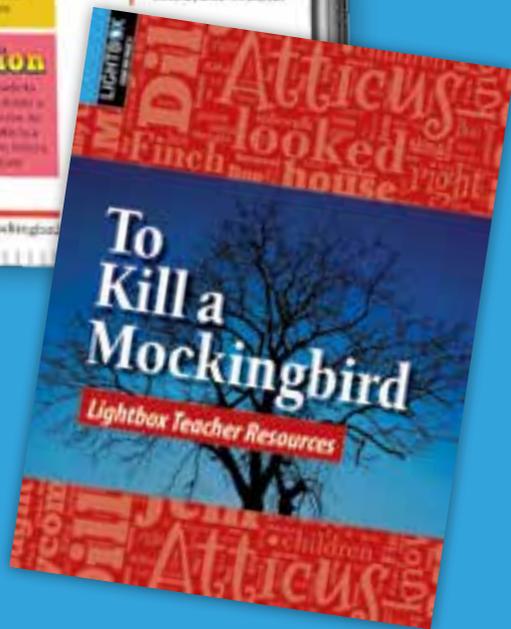

More

Examples of Literary Devices from the Novel

Describe and analyze the significance of various literary devices and techniques that appear in the novel. Analyze how Harper Lee uses various literary devices to contribute to the overall narrative.

1. Choose a literary device and analyze its use in the novel.
2. How does Lee use this device to contribute to the novel's overall message?
3. What is the purpose of using this literary device? Is it effective?
